DESIGN INSPIRATION

Guermantes was named for a bucolic town in the Île-de-France region located in north-central France. Carnations, irises, tulips, daffodils and tossed bell-like petals are printed on a ground of cotton. Designed by Paule Marrot, Geurmantes is printed in France. Paule Marrot (17 April 1902 - 22 December 1987) was a Parisian textile designer widely known for her textile prints with a flat, two-dimensional, upbeat style - often with a floral pattern. She experienced strong popularity in the U.S. after World War II, worked with Renault to develop the company's textile and color division, and redefined furnishing fabrics in her native country of France.
