DESIGN INSPIRATION

Anissa Print derives from an Indienne-style archive document. This is a style of textiles combining Eastern craftsmanship and a Western aesthetic produced between the seventeenth and early nineteenth centuries. This graceful print offers stylized boughs, birds and blossoms between decorative borders, a detail kept from the original document. Digitally printed on a lightweight, cotton blend ground, this elegant drapery fabric coordinates with the colorways of Farrah Print, Citra Block Print Tape and Tulsi Block Print Tape.
